

The Berkeley-Haas Open Innovation Start-Up Disruption Award

November 20, 2015

Sam Visaisouk, CEO, Tyromer Inc., is pleased to announce that Tyromer has received a Third Place Award in the Start-up Disruption category of the prestigious Berkeley-Haas Open Innovation Awards at the 2015 World Open Innovation Conference in Santa Clara, California.

The Award is for startups that are not yet well known, but have the potential of becoming a big disruptive player in the market.

Tyromer thanks the distinguished panel of judges for supporting its vision to bringing a socially responsible and environmentally sustainable solution to the management of over one billion scrap tires generated globally every year. It is reassuring to know that these intellectual, innovation and business leaders value sustainability in this world of high tech, high finance and IoT.

Andy Zynga (right), Ph.D., CEO, Nine Sigma, presented the Start-up Disruption Award, Third Place, to Sam Visaisouk.