In the REACH Regulation, a recovered material is considered a substance which has ceased to be waste and therefore REACH requirements apply. For recovered substances, Article 2(7)(d) provides exemption from REACH registration requirements if the same substances have already been registered at the manufacturing stage and information on the registered substance is available. Rubber recyclers are therefore exempted from the obligation to register the monomer(s) and any chemically bound substance(s), provided that they have been registered and data is available.

Tyromer Europe checked the registration of all polymers derived from used (tire) rubber material, constituents present in relevant quantities and any other substance which still plays an intended role in its recycled rubber.

We concluded that all the necessary information is available. Based on these two findings, Tyromer Europe fulfils the conditions described in Article 2(7)(d) and is thus exempted from REACH registration requirements. This covers all Tyromer Europe products which are therefore REACH compliant. According to Article 2(7)(d), Tyromer Europe is not required to register the recovered substance, neither to make an exposure scenario for the downstream uses nor to notify the use of the recovered substances, even if the use of the recycled rubber is not mentioned in the SDS of the substance at the manufacturing stage.

Tyromer Europe will supply necessary information by providing an SDS. For recycled materials, an SDS may be compiled using generic information and does not require notification of a registration number or an exposure scenario.

Tyromer Europe is aware of the notification obligations for substances included on the Candidate List as described in Article 33 and will inform customers where necessary. Tyromer Europe is determined to be always REACH compliant. If new obligations for the recycling industry are introduced in the future, we will respond accordingly
